I. Composition, powers and operation of the Council and associated ministerial activities:

A. Composition and powers of the Council

The Council consists of representatives of the Member States. Each state delegates to it one member of its government.

The Presidency of the Council is held in turn by each Member State in the Council for a term of three months in the alphabetical order of the Member States.

In accordance with the powers assigned to it by the Treaty and the Annexes thereto, the Council, in the cases provided for and in the manner set out in the Treaty:

1. takes decisions, particularly regarding the composition of the other institutions and bodies of the Community and the status of their members;
2. gives assents, approvals or authorisations regarding the regulations, decisions or recommendations of the other institutions of the Community;
3. conducts consultations on draft regulations, decisions and recommendations of the High Authority.

The decisions, assents, authorisations and approvals of the Council require unanimity in some cases and a simple or qualified majority in others (a detailed table of the Council's powers is set out in Annex I).

The Council exercises its powers, in particular in order to harmonise the action of the High Authority and that of the governments, which are responsible for the general economic policies of their countries.

To this end, the Council and the High Authority exchange information and consult each other. At its 10th session, the Council agreed with the High Authority that, pursuant to Article 26 of the Treaty, at each meeting there would be an exchange of views between the Council and the High Authority, or at least a communication from the High Authority concerning the progress achieved in the general policy which it intends to pursue.

The Council may request the High Authority to examine any proposals and measures which it considers appropriate or necessary for the attainment of the common objectives.

At the request of one of the Member States or of the High Authority, the Court may annul the deliberations of the Council.

Only grounds arising from lack of competence or from the infringement of an essential procedural requirement may be invoked in support of such an appeal.

B. Operation of the Council

Meetings of the Council are convened by its President at the request of a Member State or of the High Authority.

Where the Council is consulted by the High Authority, it may consider the matter without necessarily taking a vote. The minutes of its proceedings are forwarded to the High Authority.

Wherever the Treaty requires that the assent of the Council be given, that assent is considered to have been given if the proposal submitted by the High Authority receives the approval:

— of an absolute majority of the representatives of the Member States, including the vote of the representative of one of the states which produce at least 20 % of the total value of the coal and steel output of the Community;

— or, in the case of an equal division of votes, and if the High Authority maintains its proposal after a second discussion, of the representatives of two Member States which each produce at least 20 % of the total value of the coal and steel output of the Community.

Wherever the present Treaty requires a unanimous decision or unanimous assent, such decision or assent is deemed to have been duly given if all the members of the Council vote in favour.

Decisions of the Council, other than those for which a qualified majority or unanimity is required, are taken by a vote of the majority of its members. This majority is considered to be attained if it represents an absolute majority of the representatives of the Member States, including the vote of the representative of one of the states which produce at least 20 % of the total value of the coal and steel output of the Community.

Where a vote is taken, any member of the Council may act on behalf of not more than one other member.

The Council deals with the Member States through its President.

Under Article 30 of the Treaty, at its first session the Council established its provisional Rules of Procedure. Within those Rules of Procedure, and in accordance with the final paragraph of Article 28 of the Treaty, the Council also established the procedure for publishing its acts.

C. Ministerial activities carried out within the Council by its members as representatives of their governments:

In addition to exercising the powers assigned to it by the Treaty as a Community institution, the Council acted as a framework for the ministerial activities which its members conducted as representatives of the governments of the Member States of the Community.

This practice was confirmed at the 13th session of the Council by a resolution of its members who, acting as the representatives of their governments, decided to meet within the Council in order to deal with matters which arise at the level of the European Coal and Steel Community but which are the responsibility of the Member States.

This procedure should ensure — in line with the task of harmonising the action of the High Authority and that of the governments of the Member States assigned to the Council by Article 26 of the Treaty — continuity and harmony of ministerial activities in the areas which are the responsibility of the Council as well as in those which are the responsibility of the Member States.

D. Secretariat, Coordinating Committee and Technical Committees

In carrying out its activities, the Council is assisted by the Secretariat.

In order to prepare for its sessions, the Council is also assisted by the Coordinating Committee. The 2nd, 4th and 5th Council sessions had already been preceded by meetings of a committee responsible for preparing the deliberations of the Council. That committee was later replaced by the Coordinating Committee, which the Council decided to create at its 5th session.

In addition, at its very first session, the Council created various Technical Committees. After setting up the Coordinating Committee, the Council assigned to it the task of creating and convening Technical Committees as required. The Technical Committees which had been created by the Council itself and whose mandate had not yet expired when the Coordinating Committee was set up continued to function as subcommittees of the latter.

Like the Coordinating Committee, the Technical Committees did not deal solely with questions which had been brought before the Council as a Community institution: they also undertook the preparatory work for the ministerial activities carried out within the Council by its members as representatives of the six governments.

Three of these committees are standing committees:

1. the Committee on Trade Policy Questions,
2. the Technical Committee on Customs Questions,
3. the Committee responsible for receiving the reports of the President of the Council on the activities of the Committee of the Four Presidents.

Created by the Council at its first session under the name of the Committee of Experts to study questions arising in relation to Articles 14, 20 and 22 of the Convention (i.e. the Convention on the Transitional Provisions), the Technical Committee on Trade Policy Questions was given its current name at the 5th session of the Council. By means of a Council decision taken at its 8th session, the committee which, as a subcommittee of the Coordinating Committee, was normally convened by that Committee was authorised to meet, in emergencies, on its own initiative. The Technical Committee on Customs Questions was created, as a committee of the Council, by a decision taken by the Coordinating Committee at its first session.

All the other Technical Committees of the Council are ad hoc committees whose mandate expires when the task assigned to them has been completed. A list of these committees is set out in Annex II.

At its 9th session, the Council decided that its opinions would be drafted by the Secretariat, assisted by a drafting committee comprising one member from each of the delegations.
